Harry Mohr Relates Interesting Story of How His Wife Had Suffered.

"You should take Plant Juice" is becoming a "catch" phrase in answer to an interrogation as to the state of one's health. It is heard on the street, in the street cars, theatre lobbies and wherever people congregate. At present Plant Juice, the new herbal system tonic, is one of the most talked-of preparations ever placed upon the market, for it will give instant, positive relief in almost all cases of stomach, liver, kidney trouble and rheumatism, and if continued the results are permanent. It is nature's own remedy, composed of medicinal roots, herbs, barks and berries and does not contain minerals, narcotics or habit-forming drugs.

People call daily at the drug store where Plant Juice is being introduced and give voluntary testimonials as to its merits and the benefits they have received. For instance, Harry Mohr, who has resided in Cleveland for the past 22 years and who lives at No. 2320 East 46th street, recently, in a signed statement, said:

"My wife has suffered from stomach trouble, dyspepsia and indigestion for a long time. She was in a generally 'run down' condition and had bad pains across her back. She suffered greatly every time she arose from a chair. Her food fermented and after eating, gas would form and she would bloat. She had treated for this trouble for a long time, but did not seem to improve any. I had been reading about Plant Juice helping Cleveland people, and decided to get a bottle for her. She has taken Plant Juice for the past week and at present is feeling fifty per cent better and we give all credit for same to this medicine." Plant Juice is sold in Waco at Dr. W. B. Morrison's Old Corner Drug Store.

Carter Harrison in Last Official Word

Chicago, April 18.—In his annual message made public today, Mayor Carter Harrison, who is to make way for his republican successor, Wm. Hale Thompson, within a few days, reviewed the 12 years he served Chicago as chief executive.

The message, which the mayor called his final official word to the people of Chicago, calls public ownership of public utilities the taxpayers' only safety and refers to vice segregation as a failure.

Of the social evil, the message says: "Segregation does not segregate. Medical supervision does not protect. The breaking up of the segregated districts has not spread the social evil into the residence districts as was feared would be the result."

Negro and Chickens Are Locked in Jail

One negro and four fine Rhode Island Reds are locked up in the city jail, in separate cells, as a result of a quick trip to the south end by the Chickenmen Craven and Brandon. The officers came upon two negroes engaged in pilfering fowls. The one with the sack was run down and captured, but the other escaped, running through several fences and a servant house.

MUD GIVES WAY TO SUN IN BATTLE FRONT

FOR LONG TIME BOTH ARMIES HAMPERED BY IMPASSIBLE ROADS.

Soldier's Life Now a Paradise in Comparison to What It Has Been.

General Headquarters of the British Army in France, April 18, via London, 4:20 p. m.—The mud element which has so hampered both armies during the winter operations in France and Belgium now has virtually disappeared along the British front.

Dismal, rainy days have given way to almost unbroken weeks of sunshine which has dried up the roads, trenches and lines of communication, making the soldier's life a paradise compared with former conditions. With the coming of clearer weather there also has been a marked increase in the number of aeroplane reconnaissances on both sides, as a cloudless atmosphere is just what the observers want.

A dozen aircraft maneuvered over Ypres yesterday afternoon. The majority were British, attempting to bring down a German flyer who was trying to spot batteries at the rear of the British lines. Although the duels continued for hours, no machine on either side was brought down.

Broadly speaking, there has been no change in the British front since Neuve Chapelle, trench warfare continuing along the whole line, with only a few casualties here and there daily. The Associated Press correspondent, spending the afternoon in the British trenches at Ploegsteert, less than 100 yards from the German line, found the contending armies comparatively inactive. The British were behind ramparts of sandbags, merely did some sniping occasionally and now and then set loose a trench mortar.

Peering through a periscope, no sign of a living human being could be seen along the German line, though now and then bullets whizzed from loopholes, either singling close overhead or striking the sandbags with a vicious thud. No man dares show even the top of his head. The danger was emphasized when the correspondent, thrusting the periscope higher than was necessary, drew a bullet which seemed almost to graze the instrument. Nearby stood a young British officer calmly firing through a loophole at an opening in the rival trench, aiming, looting and commenting on hits and misses much as might a man at target practice.

This sort of thing has persisted for weeks and generally describes the conditions along the entire front. The monotony is relieved only by such dashes as those which took place at Neuve Chapelle or the actions of the French who are now engaged at certain places. Artillery, both German and British, is keeping up only a desultory fire, shells criss-crossing and swishing overhead at intervals during the day and night.

At one point where the trenches are less than 200 yards apart, the correspondent saw three British shells fall in the German lines, one striking inside a trench and hurling debris high into the air. The Germans lately are using less artillery than the British, failing to reply even to persistent shelling except where from their many observation posts they sight movements in the British lines.

Stolen Bicycle Recovered.
A bicycle belonging to Ed Bauerle Jr., stolen yesterday from in front of the Queen theatre, was recovered last night by Detective George Jackson, who found the machine near the country poor farm. No arrest was made.

Possible That German Sea Raider Will Put to Sea Again

Captain Thierfelder. KRONPRINZ WILHELM IN NEWPORT NEWS HARBOR. PHOTOS BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

Although experts declared that it would take some time to put the Kronprinz Wilhelm in a seaworthy condition and intimate that it would be foolhardiness for her to put to sea in her present condition, her commander, Captain Thierfelder, declared that he would make a dash for the open sea. There was a disposition to take with a grain of salt the German officer's declaration of his purposes. The ship is leaking badly along her sides, several shell plates having been loosened while she coaled at sea. It is believed that the condition of her sides is one of the chief reasons why she put into port here. Note gun on stern of ship.

Poker Players Found When Officer Makes Search for Burglar

Night Watchman Frank Blair was looking for a burglar and walked up on a poker party in a room on the second floor of the Hogan building, North Fourth and Sanger alley, early yesterday morning. Eight men were caught in the haul, six of whom pleaded guilty in the corporation court yesterday morning.

Complaints had been coming to the officers that for several nights attempts had been made to enter the room of a man in the building, and when Officer Blair heard someone walking around on the second floor he investigated in the hope of finding the would-be burglar. A full outfit was found in the room, consisting of tables, chairs, several sets of chips and about fifteen decks of cards.

Automobile Stolen in Front of Church

A five-passenger Ford automobile belonging to N. S. Hill, was stolen from in front of the Methodist tabernacle, Eleventh and Columbus, about 8:30 last night. The car bore Waco license number 0259. No trace had been found by officers at a late hour last night.

Baseball Claims Two Youthful Victims

Freehold, N. J., April 18.—John A. Deroche, Jr., 18 years old, died today as the result of being hit on the temple by a batted baseball while a spectator at a game between Point Pleasant and Freehold high schools here yesterday.

Richmond, Va., April 18.—Robert J. Howison, 10 years old, died here today as the result of being hit on the head by a batted ball while a spectator at a baseball game at Ashland, Va., yesterday.

Methodist Churches Hold Union Service

All Methodist churches of the city united in the service in the forenoon yesterday. Bishop Kilgo preached to a crowd conservatively estimated at 2,500.

"Secret Sins" was the subject of Bishop Kilgo's sermon last night, with the text, "And be sure your sins will find you out."

Bishop Kilgo said, in part: "Man lives in a great deal of his life, and some of it is unnecessary. If the lawyer, the doctor and the banker were to tell all they know of the individual, some of you would be moral and financial wrecks tomorrow morning—but the ethics of their profession seals their lips."

"Some men walk upright and straight in Waco, and are veritable demons when turned loose in New York City."

"All the Christianity some people have lies in what they can keep other people from knowing what they haven't got."

"You might play the game successfully in this world and get away with it—but, hear me—it will overtake you at the bar of God, the last place you will want it to overtake you."

"The sins that beset a man's trail are like a pack of hounds turned loose on him. They trail him through his school days, his young manhood, his business, his home, everywhere—but, thank God, there is one place where the hounds of hell lose the trail, and that is on Calvary—they can't follow a man there."

Creators at San Diego.
San Diego, April 18.—The San Diego exposition announces the engagement of Giuseppe Creatore and his famous concert band for two weeks beginning April 24, adding importantly to the already striking list of musical attractions at San Diego.

The Italian leader leaped into immediate popularity several years ago in the east, and since that time has added to his reputation at almost every first class city of the country, with engagements lasting through the summer months in the amusement parks of Chicago, New York and Boston. His recent tour of the south has created for him a name throughout Dixie eclipsing that of any other leader.

Third Week's Sale of Stratton Stock to Begin Today

"Commencing this morning at exactly 9 o'clock we will give one and all an opportunity to buy at these greatly reduced sale prices whether they have the ready cash or not, so as to hurry up the clearing out of Stratton's entire stock. Select your furniture and floor coverings today and pay for them in one, two, three, four and six months' time." This is the announcement of R. T. Dennis, inaugurating his policy for the third week of the Stratton furniture stock sale, which begins this morning.

The previous two weeks of the sale have been far more successful than the highest expectations. The amount of furniture that has gone out of the Stratton store has been almost incredible, but according to the sales manager, there are still splendid selections left in the stock.

The manager announces that the low sale prices will be allowed on goods bought on credit if as much as one-third is paid at time of purchase. With this added inducement it is expected that the stock will be sold out in short order, clearing the way for the carpenters who will begin at once to remodel the building for the new tenants.

Extra delivery men and wagons have been put on, and patrons may be assured of prompt delivery of all purchases.

"It is too late to quote many prices, come see for yourself what's left," was the statement of the manager yesterday.

Waco Woman Invents a Duplex Sifter

Negotiations are in progress for latest improved machinery to manufacture a Waco the Shirley Duplex Sifter, which was invented and patented by Mrs. C. H. Green of this city. It is planned to manufacture the sifter in this city, and conduct each turn of "Made in Waco."

The Shirley Duplex sifter is, as its name implies, two sifters in one. By one operation the flour is sifted twice. Every woman sifter has tried to turn out "Made in Waco" flour. A model displayed about the city has created a large demand. An order has been let to an eastern manufacturer for 100 dozen of the sifter, which will be placed on the market first in Waco.

Compels All Impurities To Abandon System

Blood Troubles Can not Remain If Properly Treated.

There is in S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, a property that absolutely compels harmful influences to disintegrate and lose their identity. No matter what they are called, nor how destructive they are to the S. S. S. a powerful, searching counter influence to annihilate the most eruptive germ, causes the mucous linings to convert it into an inert substance that is quickly thrown out of the blood and out of the body by the skin, lungs, kidneys, bowels, and destroyed in the liver. There is not a single advance in medicine today that in any sense is an improvement over S. S. S. Surgery is a wonderful, masterful science, but when it comes to purifying the blood S. S. S. stands alone. Thousands of doctors have prescribed it. Their patients do not always know it is S. S. S. because they leave the treatment to the doctor implicitly. But fair-minded doctors long ago realized that in the vegetable nature of S. S. S. there is no harm, and that the average doctor is humane and of trained intelligence. He has even the recoveries from worst cases of blood trouble by the use of S. S. S. Get a bottle of S. S. S. today of any druggist, or better still, write to the Medical Adviser, The Swift Specific Co., 102 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is worth while doing so.

Presbyterian Church Is United According to Legal Decision

St. Louis, April 18.—A decision handed down by the U. S. circuit court of appeals here yesterday was interpreted by church leaders today as legal confirmation of the union of the Presbyterian and Cumberland Presbyterian churches. The legality of the union had been fought by an insurgent minority of the two churches since 1906, when it was voted by the general assemblies of both denominations.

The court decision declares that the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America (the Northern Presbyterian body) is the rightful owner of the property of the Missouri Valley College at Marshall, Mo., and of all other church property of the former Cumberland denomination.

Churchill Says No Action in North Sea

London, April 18, 2:55 a. m.—Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, has issued the following denial of recent rumors:

"There has been no naval action of any kind in the North sea during the past month, nor any action of any kind in the Dardanelles other than local bombardments and reconnaissances by single ships."

MISS NEALE TALKS CANNING.

Expert at College of Industrial Arts Claims Is Simple.

Denton, Tex., April 18.—"Most of our Texas housewives do not know how to can vegetables, and have become discouraged in doing this necessary and really simple work," says Miss Laura F. Neale, of the domestic science department of the College of Industrial Arts, who will conduct the first course in canning and preserving offered by the college in connection with its regular summer session, beginning June 1. "Many of us who are trying to reduce household expenditures as much as possible have tried for instance the canning of beans, but not finding successful methods have given up the plan. Others have been partially successful by the use of acids and preservatives. These, however, are wholly unnecessary. The use of scientific methods in canning and preserving will leave no need for their use."

For the canning of vegetables in the home, Miss Neale advocates the intermittent method, which means boiling the fruit or vegetable one day to kill some of the bacteria and encourage the growth of other forms, cooking the next day to kill these and then again the third day to make absolute sterilization. The destruction of even the most heat resisting spores. Some fundamental work in bacteriology will necessarily be in the course, explaining the decay of fruits and vegetables, and suggesting preventive measures. The mold and yeast cause the spoiling of fruits and bacteria the decay of vegetables is perhaps not generally understood, also the required care for preservation in each case.

The entire course of lectures has been planned to be of special benefit to workers in the canning club movement of Texas under the auspices of the A. and M. college, to practical housekeepers, to teachers in the rural schools who wish to give domestic science instruction in this popular form and to club workers generally. There will be both actual practice and lecture work included. Though this is the first year for the course there is no doubt as to its reception judging from the requests which have been received by the college for the course. It will include besides the canning and preserving of fruits and vegetables, the making of pickles, relishes, jams, jellies and of special interest the making of vinegar.

The various methods of canning and preserving and the use of every kind of container will be thoroughly discussed.

An unusually practical feature for canning club workers will be the demonstration of the use of a steam pressure canner, using tin cans. This is raised by the use of pressure the heat is caused considerably above the boiling point, 212 degrees Fahrenheit, and even the spores are killed in a short time, which renders this perhaps the best method for all canning. How this canner may be used in every home and the many practical points in connection with its use will constitute an important part of the series.

Kennedale Bank Is Broken Into But the Attempt Is Failure

Fort Worth, April 18.—The First State bank of Kennedale, a suburb of Fort Worth, was broken into some time Saturday night, the vault door pried from its fastenings and an ineffectual attempt made to penetrate through the inner steel screw door to the funds of the bank. The attempted robbery was discovered Sunday morning.

"No," he said.—Lippincott's.

HIGH SCHOOL PRESS CLUBS.

Baylor University's Press Club did a bit of real service when it induced eighteen high schools and academies over the state to enroll in the Texas Interscholastic Press Association, an organization that was launched here Friday for the purpose of stimulating interest in literary composition by the pupils of high schools and academies, raising the standards of student publications, organization of press clubs in the various schools for the study of literary and journalistic problems, and for giving to the students of the various schools holding membership in the association a greater fraternal bond than exists at present.

There is just as much occasion for the promotion of the literary and journalistic interests of the high schools and academies of the state as the debating, or athletic interests, and we are glad the initial step in that direction has been taken. Extension work on the part of the colleges in fostering such movements is highly creditable and the Baylor Press Club is to be commended on rendering this unselfish service.

The broader one's information in every field of human knowledge, the better he is equipped for newspaper work and there is no reason why this preparation should not begin in the high schools. Nor is it necessary that the high schools should establish departments in journalism for that preparation to begin. Pupils looking forward toward newspaper work can lay particular emphasis upon those courses of study that will be of most value to them in their newspaper careers, while they can give their attention too, to work on the student publications, keeping the papers of their city posted on news items concerning the activities of the high school, and practice the art of written expression by reducing to writing their impressions of everything of interest which they see about them. And by keeping on the alert for things of interest in and around the high school they train their powers of observation and stimulate the "nose for news," that equipment without which no one can hope to succeed in the newspaper field.

High school students interested in journalism as a career will do well to form a press club and begin a serious study first of high school publications and later of newspapers proper. They can obtain some idea of what a newspaper ought to be by studying the contents and style of the best papers available, and while they can not expect to become full-fledged newspaper men and women in this way, the ideas and information which they will thus obtain will stand them in good stead when they come to enter the active newspaper office.

Fort Worth boasts of the novelty of a college man, a lawyer, as its new chief of police. His name is Cullen Bailey. He hails from Harvard and has started out by ordering that none of his men shall drink or smoke while on duty and that men and women of bad character, men who associate with bad women, and vags and loiterers shall not be permitted to linger on the streets. That sounds pretty well and we hope the new chief will be able to see that his orders are carried out. But there is no reason why a college man, specially trained, if he has any executive ability, should not make a good police chief. A man of college training ought to make a better police chief, lawyer, banker, farmer or member of any other trade or profession than the man who has not had that training, though the man of native ability but lacking in college training will make a greater success in the world than the college trained man minus native ability. But ability with special training is invincible.

Three former members of Madero's cabinet have called General Huerta's hand on his proposition that he knew who killed Madero, but could not tell because he could not violate a soldier's secret. But as the cabinet members point out, until he does tell and thus clears his own skirts, he is not the man whom the present-day Mexicans want to rule over them.

THE CHURCH AND DEMOCRACY.

Churches were doubtless never quite so aggressive in many directions as they are today. Their range of operations is wider than at any previous period. More and more men of affairs are coming to recognize in the church the channels for the accomplishment of the largest social and moral service and are contributing largely of their funds to make this larger work possible.

But in one respect, at least, the church is not living up to its opportunity and that is in applying the power of personal contact in its work. Church members have become too busy during the week to look after their fellow members as they ought. Many of them have ceased to be as diligent in waiting upon the sick, ministering personally to the widow and the orphan, and helping the less fortunate in material affairs during the week days as they ought, while on Sundays they rush away from the church building before they have had an opportunity to meet and get acquainted with such strangers as may chance to visit their congregations. At least, this is the case in many of the churches, especially those in the city.

And the city church, by reason of its opportunity to reach a large number of people, owes a larger responsibility in this direction than the country church. It owes an obligation to the young man away from home or who has no home; it should make an effort to reach the laboring man; and while we have heard a great deal said about the duty of the church toward the poor and unfortunate, the church owes just as large a duty, perhaps, to the rich, for there are rich people in the land who are being just as much neglected spiritually as are the poor. And surely the rich man is just as much in need of the blessings which true religion can confer as is his brother less fortunate in possessing the goods of this world.

And it is our conviction that to the church belongs the one great opportunity to bring labor and capital to a better understanding of each other and the establishment of equitable relations between them. Capital is selfish and is sometimes prejudiced against labor. But labor is sometimes selfish, too, and is prejudiced against capital. If the capitalists could be induced to go to church, make a careful and consistent study of the Bible and its teachings he would get a new vision of his duty to God and to his fellowman as well, and when he obtains that new and better vision of his duty and enough of the love of God in his heart to enable him to perform that duty he will be unwilling that any injustice shall be done any of his employees. And the laboring man needs to have his sense of what is right and just quickened by a realization of the proper attitude of man toward man as prescribed by the infallible God.

By bringing both the capitalist and the laboring man to church and enabling both of them to have their distorted views corrected the way is paved for bringing them together. And through the personal contact of the rich man with the poor, the capitalist with the laborer, at the church on Sunday the way is paved for bringing them closer together during the week. Possibly the capitalists and the laborers are to blame in a large measure for not attending church and looking after the development of their spiritual natures, but a part of the responsibility for this lies upon the church which has not always been as diligent as it might in mapping out a program that challenged the interest and co-operation of the business man, while it has not shown as much interest in the laboring man as it ought, and has not sought as diligently as it might to give the laboring man a share in the work of the church and make him feel that he was really needed.

If the church of today is not as powerful as it was in other days it is because the church has not paid the price in its consecration to God and its activity in Christian service. The church diligently at work in the right spirit, bringing rich and poor, great and small, together in a common purpose—the advancement of God's kingdom in the world and the amelioration of the ills of humanity—is the greatest democratizing force the world has known and it has itself and not modern conditions, so much, to blame when it fails to exercise this influence.

For thirty-seven years B. Sbisas has been feeding the boys of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college. Now the task of feeding 1,000 boys three times a day is a big man's job, and the fact that the A. and M. boys have never been known to suffer from lack of nourishment or ill prepared food is indication that Mr. Sbisas knows his job and is always at it. He is a useful servant of the people and enjoys the confidence of all the people who know him and his work.

"Every mother should be a pal to her daughter; teach the daughter to come to her for advice and counsel, since a failure to do this will in many instances prove harmful," declared a Houston physician to the Mother's Club of that city. Now the doctor should rush over to the Father's Club and show the fathers that they should be equally industrious in making pals of their sons.

Keep the week beginning April 26 in mind and do not let other engagements come in to prevent your attendance upon the "Made-in-Waco" exposition. It will be an education for you and an education that will mean money in your pocket and prosperity for Waco.

Grayson county voted $900,000 in good road bonds Saturday. This money will be used in constructing 225 miles of improved roads which will connect Sherman, the county seat, with every town in the county.

WHAT IS EDUCATION?

Laymen, who in recent years have watched with bewilderment the excited discussions in educational conferences and conventions, are beginning to see that, generally speaking, the wordy conflict that divides schoolmen into warring groups and splits boards of education, centers in the definition of education, observes the California Outlook. They see that in the last analysis nearly all educational controversies present clashes between two opposing ideals.

On one side are found the people who believe that so far as possible education should be reduced to the teaching of the famous three R's and their allied subjects. They clamor for simplicity, directness, inexpensiveness. They rail against the innovations, the fads and frills, the wild experiments of present education. They cry aloud and unceasingly against the increasing cost of modern education with its multiplied courses of study, its polytechnic institutions, its departmental work, and its high schools with their costly equipment. They view with unfeigned alarm the growing independence in thought, speech and conduct of the students. Undoubtedly most of these anxious schoolmen are sincere, but ranged with them will be found the penurious taxpayer who is more concerned with saving a mill on the tax rate than in the salvation of the youth; the animated fossils who have been dead for twenty years, and others who for various reasons oppose the natural processes of social evolution.

On the other side are found the people who are trying to expand the definition of education until it shall include every class, every activity, every need of the community, who seek to make the schools serve the widest purpose.

They rejoice in the amazing development of our high schools because the adoption of practical courses has tremendously increased the number of students in these institutions of learning; has attracted the boys so that whereas a few years ago the girls in the high schools far outnumbered the boys, they now break half and half; and those schools are no longer mere feeders for universities, but are really preparing the young people for life.

They support intermediate schools because these schools bridge the former chasm between the elementary and the high schools; and statistics prove this contention.

They endorse penny kitchens, because it has been discovered that children can not study well when their stomachs are empty, and they have a belief that everything that promotes the educational efficiency of the child is properly a care of the school department.

They establish clinics, not only because they are philanthropic, but because it has been shown that good teeth, good eyes and general good health are essential to good results in the school room.

They define education so broadly that music and art, ministering to the esthetic life of man, are considered as important as ciphering. They look with approval upon vocational and trade schools, because they suspect that education should be thoroughly practical.

They encourage the establishment of school gardens and supervised playgrounds, holding it self-evident that childhood will develop naturally and beautifully if given wholesome environment for recreation.

They grow enthusiastic over social and civic centers with their night schools and their classes for immigrants, their musical programs, political discussions, and social gatherings, because they dare dream of a time when the schools shall be the center of the community life, the new church, serving the moral, intellectual and social needs of people who know and desire the blessings of neighborliness.

And all this costs money, real money, and lots of it. To the small-minded, close-fisted taxpayer and the backward-looking reactionary all this activity is insanity and chaos, but the seer knows that this movement for the broadening of our educational activities is to be a democracy in deed and spirit as well as in name.

Sanitation of Country Schools

(Supt. Francis G. Blair of Illinois, in Illinois Medical Journal and Bulletin, 1915 No. 5, "The Health of School Children.")

The law of Illinois makes the superintendent of public instruction the supervisor of all the common and public schools of Illinois. It makes him the adviser of school officers. On this legal authority the superintendent of public instruction has appointed two country school supervisors who are working to better the physical and instructional conditions of the one-room country schools. Two diplomas are prepared by the state department, one for a standard one-room school and the other for a superior one-room school. The standard diploma is awarded to any school which meets a certain minimum requirement. This minimum standard requirement as it relates to the physical and sanitary conditions is as follows:

1. Ample playground.
2. Good approaches to the house.
3. Two well-kept, widely separated outbuildings.
4. The school house:
 1. House well built, in good repair, and painted.
 2. Good foundation.
 3. Well lighted.
 4. Attractive interior decorations.
 5. Good blackboards—some suitable for small children.
 6. Heated with jacketed stove in corner, or room heater and ventilator in corner, or basement furnace which brings clean air in through the furnace and moves foul air from the room.
 7. Floor and interior clean and tidy.
 8. Desks suitable for children of all ages, properly placed.
 9. Sanitary water supply.

In order to secure the superior diploma the following additional requirements must be met:

1. Grounds—
 1. Playgrounds at least one-half acre and kept in good condition.
 2. Some trees and shrubs.
 3. Well or cistern and sanitary drinking appliances.
2. House—
 1. Separate cloak rooms for boys and girls.
 2. Lighted from one side or from one end and the rear.
 3. Heated with basement or room furnace, which brings in pure and removes foul air.

The country school supervisors go into the counties on invitation of the county superintendent. They visit the schools and examine personally the physical equipment. Along with the diploma goes a label which is prepared by the department of public instruction for the door of the school house. The label has printed in gold on a black background "Standard School" or "Superior School," in such type that it can be read at a distance of from 200 to 300 yards.

This appeal to local pride has been far more successful than was anticipated when the plan was formulated. The supervisors have awarded diplomas to several thousand standard schools, and a number of diplomas have been awarded to superior schools. These diplomas are renewable for five years. Each year there must be an investigation to see whether the school has been kept up to the standard. If in any instance the pupils, teachers or directors grow indifferent and allow the equipment to deteriorate, the diploma is withdrawn. It is believed that this plan not only improves the condition in schools able to meet the requirements and receive the diploma, but it goes farther and improves certain conditions in many schools that cannot meet all the requirements.

(Besides the states listed in the chapter on rural education of the 1913 report of the commissioner of education, a number of other states—namely Montana, Colorado, Mississippi, Kentucky and North Carolina—have recently tried out similar plans of standardizing country schools.)

We all know a store is judged not by its words, but by its deeds.

To attain the highest point of development dealers must oppose wrong methods, even though they are entrenched in common usage.

Strictest integrity in dealing with customers is the only way to win out and build a business upon a solid foundation.

The dealer of high aims will not, under any circumstances, offer or suggest a "Just as Good" when you ask for an article by name of manufacturer or trademark.

In fact, a number of dealers are anxious to cultivate the patronage of customers who read the ads and buy the standard products advertised in this paper.

Wise dealers realize advertising is directing customers to their stores, and if they hand out the merchandise asked for, customers will buy quickly, go away pleased and come back again.

After all, it's keeping old customers coming back again and adding new ones who come back again that make stores grow.

Is your store growing?

"Who Pays?"

After many years of search for a real novelty by the Pathe company, it became a realization yesterday in the form of a short novel in pictures complete in itself, published in conjunction with a daily newspaper running the story in six installments, one week previous to the presentation of the picture. "Who Pays the Price of Fame" is the picture, the six episodes of the story appearing in last week's Waco Times-Herald.

The picture is a real novelty, devoid of sensationalism but vitally interesting throughout. It is heart-gripping in intense human interest, but delightfully clean and wholesome.

Moving picture fans, not having read the story, will glean this wider, gripping independent tale and has no connection with coming ones. This eliminates the great objection to the serial story, that if all readers do not start at the beginning, there is so much waste space in each succeeding issue, so far as they are concerned.

"Who Pays" is a theme that will probably be discussed from the pulpits and certainly among the family and visitors in every home by those who see it.

Ruth Roland and Henry King are the principals.

"The Stoning."

Viola Dana, no made a lasting impression here in the engagement at the Auditorium theatre in the title role of "The Poor Little Rich Girl," returns today in what is claimed to be the most noteworthy three-part motion picture of the season. PRESENT TIME CRISIS STRENGTHENS GREAT PRINCIPLES IN MISSIONS AND LESS RELIGION IN LIFE OF CHRIST

30 DECLARES REV. McHENRY SEAL IN SERMON AT SPRING ST. BAPTIST CHURCH.

OPPORTUNITIES NOW ARE GREAT

Christians Urged to Do All Possible to Keep Up Activities in Foreign Land.

Rev. Henry McSeal, pastor of the Spring Street Baptist church, preached last night on "Missions." He took for his text Mark 16:15. He said, in part:

"We shall talk to you about missions this evening. We are now in the midst of a crisis and must not come short of our very best. Jesus Christ made this the closing subject of His life. While He was looking forward to the coming tragedy of the inevitable end He said to His disciples, 'Go ye into all the world, and proclaim the glad tidings to the whole creation, and he that believes shall be saved.' Brethren and sisters, we must do this thing because Jesus said for us to do it. Our mission fields were never more needy than now, and opportunities were never so great for the extension of the kingdom. We must do our part for this great demand that is upon the church. Our offering may be small compared with the churches of more ability, but it will be great in the eye of the Lord if we do our duty and it is no less important than the largest collection in the world. I shall be disappointed and the Lord will be displeased if we come short of a sacrifice at this time, when the Lord is giving us such wonderful opportunities to accomplish the greatest work in the salvation of souls that we have ever had through our mission forces.

"We are not only obeying our Lord's command when we come loyally to our duty to missions, but we become the recipients of one of the most joyful graces in the gift of God. No people but those whose hearts and lives have been changed by Jesus Christ can ever know the joy of this kind of service. To some church members it is painful for the pastor to preach on the subject of missions, for this ought not to be; and if all who are church members were converted, as we see it, true Christians are, this would be one of the most glorious services of the church. I shall offer no apology in saying that this dreadful, displeasing condition is in many churches, and we must members of the church or ignorance of the teaching of the Word of God. If Jesus Christ is our Savior He must be our Lord, and if He is our Lord He will do His bidding. We sometimes hear a man or woman say that they do not believe in missions, and yet claim to be Christians. To claim the religion of Jesus and then ignore its principles—its life-giving principles, is, as we see it, to be nothing but a hypocrite, a dissembler.

"To sanctify all that we have to the Lord is contrary to our nature, but this is one of the greatest demands of Jesus upon us. He said, 'Follow me, and I will give you life, and I will give you the power to overcome the world, the flesh, and the devil.' The young lawyer went to Him to know what he must do for salvation, and the last test that Jesus put to him was, 'Sell what you have and give it to the poor, and come and follow me.' He turned away sorrowful, for he had great possessions. We believe the young lawyer to have been honest, but he would not sacrifice his life and all he had to Jesus, and without such a sacrifice Jesus would not save him. He lost his soul rather than to give his life and possessions to Jesus. Suppose he had said, 'That part of it doesn't matter so much, any way,' and went on, and joined him to give him, and just went right on claiming heaven for his home; what would be his condition when he met Jesus on the judgment seat? You say, 'Folle language, Jesus would say to him, 'Devil from me, you cursed and worker of iniquity, for I never knew you.' That is just exactly what men and women are doing by the thousands in this great Bible land of ours in the face of the Word of God. Joining the church does not save folks, as important as it is for saved folks to join the church, but it does not take long for any Bible searcher to know whether or not he is saved, or not, if he joins the church. We read the Bible and learn what the spirit of Christ's life was, and then we read, 'If we have not the spirit of Christ, we are none of His.'

There is, undoubtedly, a missionary grace in the religion of Jesus. We have a way of saying, 'Saved to serve.' The word grace, understood, becomes one of the sweetest words in the language. Jesus said to us, 'Follow me, and I will give you life, and I will give you the power to overcome the world, the flesh, and the devil.' We have a way of saying, 'Saved to serve.' The word grace, understood, becomes one of the sweetest words in the language. Jesus said to us, 'Follow me, and I will give you life, and I will give you the power to overcome the world, the flesh, and the devil.'

By grace through faith we were saved, and the unsaved people of the earth have got to be saved by grace through faith if they are ever saved at all. They have no knowledge of God and His word and go on to eternal night, but many of them are ready to believe on God, and are hungry searchers for God, and God has given us the grace and the power to give them the gospel. If we fail to do this we have failed to comply with the very purpose of God, and would surely be slothful servants. God has called young men and young women from our churches to go to mission fields and have listened joyfully to their experiences and have seen them sacrifice and work to prepare themselves for their life's work. We have encouraged them to go, and they have gone, and put them on their respective fields, and have had them getting a meager salary that you would not attempt to live on, to say nothing of the parting from friends, relatives and many luxuries that we have and that they might have had, and they have gone, and have had to face with the war and panic difficulties leading men and women to Jesus and crying for more workers, for the harvest is ready and the laborers are few, what shall be in this critical hour, what shall be in the judgment at the throne of God? The very least that can be said about it is that we shall be beaten with many stripes."

QUEEN.

"May Blossom."

The photoplay revised by David Belasco's great American drama, "May Blossom," as produced by the Famous Players, will be seen at the Queen today and tomorrow. Dainty little Miss Gertrude Robinson takes the title role and in her supporting company are such well known histrionic favorites as Russell Bassett, Marshall Neilan, Donald Crisp and Miss Gertrude Norman.

Set in Civil war times, the play is a combination of scenes of home life and actions on the field of battle. Simplicity itself, the plot is one that never grows old, and the play is one that has endeared itself to thousands of playgoers over the nation.

Panama's Finances at a Critical Stage

Panama, April 18.—Panama's finances have reached a critical stage owing to a deficit in the treasury of approximately $2,000,000, resulting from decreasing revenues and increasing expenditures. The refusal of the United States to permit the republic to import duties is regarded as the worst blow Panama has had. The country's imports have been decreasing steadily since the war began.

Rain Helps Bell County Crops.

Temple, April 18.—Grain crops in this section were greatly benefited by a slow, steady rain that fell during yesterday and last night. While the ground has had a plentiful supply of moisture, yet the top soil was becoming hard and baked, owing to the rains just received have saturated the top soil and loosened the clods with the result that corn, oats, wheat and other grain crops will take on needed growth.

BISHOP KILGO POINTS OUT REASONS WHY SPAIN AND FRANCE ARE NOT LEADERS.

APPEAL FOR RIGHT LIVING PERIOD AFTER RESURRECTION

Many Respond to Strong Sermon at Afternoon Mass Meeting for Men.

A special mass meeting for men at the tabernacle, Eleventh and Columbus streets, yesterday afternoon was addressed by Bishop John C. Kilgo of Durham, N. C., who is in Waco conducting the union revival of the Methodist churches of the city. After Bishop Kilgo's strong appeal for a promise of right living from the men of Waco, many responded. Several conversations were the result of the meeting.

A special meeting for children will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3:30. Rev. Albert C. Fisher will lead the services, which will be held in the evening. All children of the city are requested to come, and parents are requested to send the children. There will be something interesting and instructive for them, and everything will be so they can understand.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Fisher of Fort Worth sang "If You Love Your Mother, Meet Her in the Skies," before the preaching. Mr. Fisher also made a short address, appealing to the men in the house to follow the course their mothers would have them take.

Bishop Kilgo's sermon was a comprehensive view of the interrelation of religious faith and civilization. He saw the greatness of races and nations is limited entirely by the strength and purity of their religious faith. When religious faith decays, civilization is weakened at every point, and the summing up.

Some of the striking statements made by the bishop in developing his theme were:

Strength of Nations. "Why is Spain now a prisoner on the southwestern peninsula when her flag once encircled the world? Because her religious faith, which made her strong enough to conquer the world, afterward degenerated into a mere priestcraft, of forms and mumblings."

"Why is not France the mistress of the seas and the commerce of the world, instead of England—England, a miserable little island; France, a beautiful country upon which nature has bestowed all the bounties of nature? I'll tell you why. It's because France had Voltaire when England had John Wesley."

"After the Dark Ages the Renaissance came, and literature and art lived again. But the Renaissance did not become a human force nor did it have effect until Luther took hold of it, gave it a religious interpretation, and regenerated all the Teutonic peoples of the earth."

Church for Religion. "The strength of nations comes from the depth of their religious faith. All the great and victorious armies have been those that were inspired by their religion. Cromwell's army was beaten in its first battle, the great conqueror held prayer meetings and sent the men into battle with testaments in their pockets. After that they were never beaten. Wellington's army, which brought an end to Napoleon's career, came out of the revivals of John Wesley."

Bishop Kilgo strongly condemned the taking up of sociological methods by the church, and said that churchmen had come to do everything but worship God. A church of this kind he illustrated by telling the story of a man who went into the woods and gathered a load of bushes, and then he went to his farm and stuck them, one by one into the earth. The man then went to town and bought a quantity of apples and red twine, with which he tied the apples to the bushes, thus making an apple orchard. It is thus, said the bishop, that some churches, said the bishop, the appearance is there, but there is no true life, and no natural relation of the whole.

The bishop spoke of city clean-up campaigns, physical culture propaganda, unemployment and tuberculosis Sunday, as some of the things with which a church should have nothing to do. "A sufficient similarity and sameness to establish the identity of the person and make Him recognizable by His disciples even though they still dwell in this material sphere. How much more, then, can we be comforted with the blessed assurance not only that we shall have continued identity in the world to come, but also shall know and be known of those whom we have loved and lost awhile in that sphere where all laws and things are spiritual."

"In this connection, let us recall these words of the great and learned Bishop of Durham, England: 'Being raised from the dead Christ died no more.' The human life which He had before lived under conditions of time and space, of decay and dissolution, was now gained subject to no change and free from the limitations of earth. At the same time nothing was said of the last which belongs to the fullness of our human nature. The risen Christ could, without derogating from the glorified manhood, show Himself as believers had known Him before, the

"You run out the fallen woman and leave behind ten lecherous, dirty animals of men to make another set of harlots. Some of you say, 'The Word of God, and that is all right, but you should seek out the scoundrel that made her a harlot and give him a cell. Others say let her be put in jail, that is the law, that is true, and let her be put in jail, but get the men who made and kept her a harlot and put them in with her. My brethren, you would be surprised to find how many she would have. She would be hoing onions on the county farm along with the best of your aristocracy. That would be one time she would get into high society."

Anarchists Godless Men. Bishop Kilgo said that the unemployed who are creating disturbances in the large cities of the north and east are Godless men. He said that Christians sometimes lose their jobs, but that they do not join the anarchists and are willing to face what they can get.

Bishop Kilgo closed with the appeal that all the church members of the city unite to invite God to Waco. He said that the greatest drawbacks to the growth and prosperity of the city were not the droughts that sometimes come to this part of the state, nor the floods of the Brazos, which he had heard sometimes ravaged the lowlands, but that the worst thing that ever struck Waco is the long line of infidel sowings that have grown in the city, influencing many all over the state. He said it was the first work of the church people of Waco to uproot these influences that had arisen from certain publications in the city. This he said would be a strenuous task, but a necessary one before the town can grow as it should.

REV. W. P. WITSELL TELLS OF LAST LESSONS TAUGHT BY JESUS ON EARTH.

Peace, Truth and Spiritual Power Imparted to Apostles Before the Ascension.

Rev. W. P. Witsell, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, preached yesterday from Acts 1:3: "To whom (the apostles) also He showed Himself alive by many infallible proofs after His passion, being seen of them forty days and speaking of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God."

He said in part: "Many of you are familiar with the church or Christian year which revolves about the sun. As you know, the church's calendar commences with the Advent season or four weeks immediately preceding Christmas, in which time the church seeks to prepare the mind and heart of men for the true contemplation of the incarnation of God in Christ through the holy nativity of Jesus, and also to remind them that He will come again to judge the quick and the dead in righteousness and truth. The Christmas-tide is followed by the Epiphany season in which we are taught with special emphasis to look upon Christ as having come to earth not only to be the glory of His people, Israel, but also to be a light to lighten the Gentiles."

"And this in turn is succeeded by the Lenten period which corresponds to the forty days in which Jesus was in the wilderness fasting, and which culminates in the scenes of Gethsemane, Calvary and the Tomb, and whose deep, dark shadows are dispelled in the illuminating glory and splendor of the Easter dawn."

Great Forty Days. "It would be interesting to know how many of you could tell us to what period of our Lord's life does this present portion of the church's year correspond. Without pausing for reply, however, we remind you that we are now in what are called 'The Great Forty Days,' which correspond to the life of Jesus that ensued between His resurrection from the dead and His ascension into Heaven to be seated forever at the right hand of the Father. These are called 'The Great Forty Days' because commencing with the resurrection and closing with the ascension, they are days of triumph and of glory, days giving birth to hope, comfort, assurance and encouragement to man, and because in them we have presented to us the great fundamentals of the Kingdom of God, emphasized according to the mind of the Risen Lord in His final interviews with His disciples."

"First, then, we ask what was the nature of our Lord's life and activity during these forty days? And in considering the answer to this we should remember that it has for us not merely the vague interest of a far-off historical event, but rather direct personal interest that springs out of practical bearing upon the hope, faith, comfort, courage, life and destiny of each of us. For as the resurrection of Jesus was not merely individual, but typical, not that of a man, but of humanity in Christ, so are we partakers not only of His resurrection, but also of the experiences and life of humanity as raised in Him if we live in His spirit and die in His faith."

"Now, as we study those passages of Holy Scripture that tell us of the life of Jesus in these forty days we perceive among other things that His powers are not less than they were before the resurrection, but greater. In moving vastly more rapidly from place to place and in entering closed rooms He shows that He is no longer subject to the limitations of time and space as flesh and blood are. We learn, too, that His, or our, human nature, in closed and more absorbed communion with the Father."

The Same Jesus. "We perceive also, however, that though there are these and other differences between what St. Paul calls 'body sown in corruption' and that which is raised in incorruption, yet that sown in dishonor and that raised in glory, that sown in a natural body and that raised a spiritual body, yet that sown in a sufficient similarity and sameness to establish the identity of the person and make Him recognizable by His disciples even though they still dwell in this material sphere."

"How much more, then, can we be comforted with the blessed assurance not only that we shall have continued identity in the world to come, but also shall know and be known of those whom we have loved and lost awhile in that sphere where all laws and things are spiritual."

"In this connection, let us recall these words of the great and learned Bishop of Durham, England: 'Being raised from the dead Christ died no more.' The human life which He had before lived under conditions of time and space, of decay and dissolution, was now gained subject to no change and free from the limitations of earth. At the same time nothing was said of the last which belongs to the fullness of our human nature. The risen Christ could, without derogating from the glorified manhood, show Himself as believers had known Him before, the

"You run out the fallen woman and leave behind ten lecherous, dirty animals of men to make another set of harlots. Some of you say, 'The Word of God, and that is all right, but you should seek out the scoundrel that made her a harlot and give him a cell. Others say let her be put in jail, that is the law, that is true, and let her be put in jail, but get the men who made and kept her a harlot and put them in with her. My brethren, you would be surprised to find how many she would have. She would be hoing onions on the county farm along with the best of your aristocracy. That would be one time she would get into high society."

Anarchists Godless Men. Bishop Kilgo said that the unemployed who are creating disturbances in the large cities of the north and east are Godless men. He said that Christians sometimes lose their jobs, but that they do not join the anarchists and are willing to face what they can get.

Bishop Kilgo closed with the appeal that all the church members of the city unite to invite God to Waco. He said that the greatest drawbacks to the growth and prosperity of the city were not the droughts that sometimes come to this part of the state, nor the floods of the Brazos, which he had heard sometimes ravaged the lowlands, but that the worst thing that ever struck Waco is the long line of infidel sowings that have grown in the city, influencing many all over the state. He said it was the first work of the church people of Waco to uproot these influences that had arisen from certain publications in the city. This he said would be a strenuous task, but a necessary one before the town can grow as it should.
